Precautions

- Remember that standardized instructions should always be followed.
- Do not translate – this invalidates the test results and violates copyright laws.
- The results of a single test should never be used to establish diagnoses or eligibility for Special Education programs or other services.

Case Study 1

A first grade teacher's district utilizes EMLSS and will benchmark to keep watch on all students' progress and identify those in need of tiered instruction.

To help accomplish this, she needs to benchmark her students on Oral Reading Fluency (ORF).

Let's help her with benchmark preparation and completion

What she needs in advance

- Knowledge of the administration and scoring rules
- Student copy of the (2) ORF passages
- Access to her class in her aimswebPlus account and knowledge of how to access the DRF

Meet a first-grade student

Be sure to log your student's number in your training workbook.

You will practice by having your "training" student take the Oral Reading Fluency assessment.

- Read the standardized directions and follow the scoring rules.
- Click on items and mark them as miscues.
- Note any important qualitative items.

Case Study 2!

A third-grade teacher is in a district that utilizes EMLSS and will benchmark to keep watch on all students' progress and identify those at-risk.

To help accomplish this, she needs to benchmark her students on Reading.

Let's help her with benchmark preparation and completion.

What she needs in advance:

- Student usernames and password if not using SSO
- Access to her class in her aimswebPlus account
- Knowledge of how to access the standardized directions
- Unlock the tests
